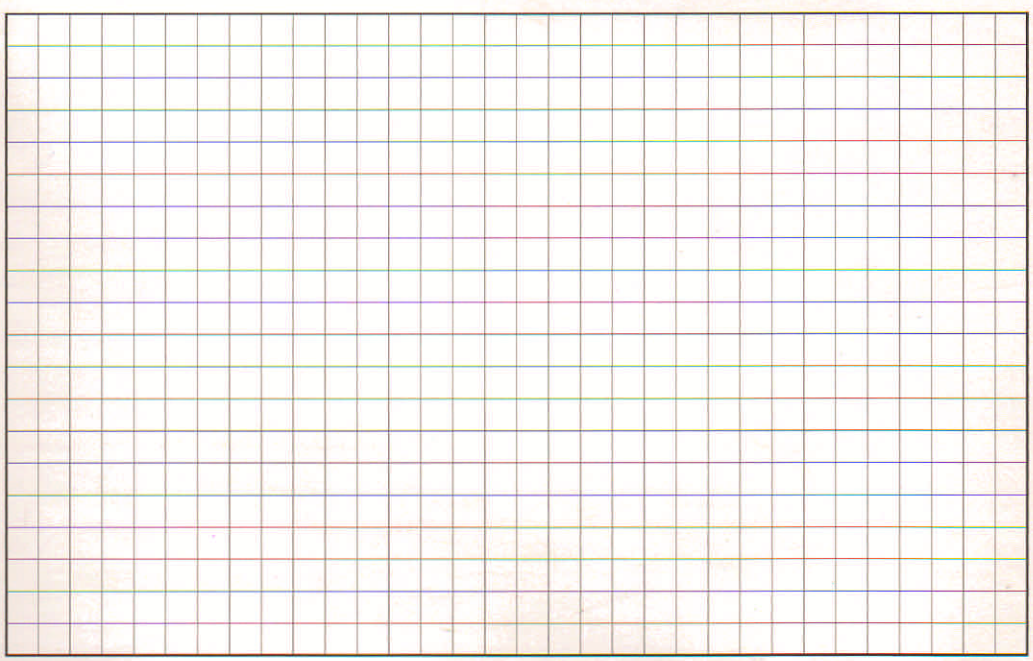
Name:_____

Class:_____ Date:_____

Student Sheet 6.2
Changing the Load

Directions In the space below, design a table and record the data from your experiment as you increase the load on the block and measure the effort force needed to move it. Give your table a title. In the table, record the kind of surface used in each trial. When you finish the table, construct a graph based on the data in your table and discuss the results with your group.

Title:_____



© 2000 National Academy of Sciences